INTERNATIONAL CONGRESS REPORT

The Xith Congress of the International Association of Individual Psychology and the first International Congress to be held in the United States met in New York at the Barbizon Plaza Hotel July 1 - 5, 1970. The meeting of the International Congress was coordinated with the 18th Annual convention of the American Society of Adlerian Psychology which usually has its annual meeting the Memorial Day weekend, but this year was extended to July to be held in conjunction with the International Congress. A large number of Adlerians from outside the United States attended. Among the most notable were Lewis Way and Paul Rom of London, England; Dr. Wera Mahler and Achi Yatom of Tel Aviv, Israel; Eric Blumenthal of Switzerland; Dr. Christoph Wolfensberger-Hassig of Switzerland; Bernard Paulmier of France; Marianne Stockert of Austria; Dr. Emerich Weisemann of England; Knut Baumgartel of Austria, Dr. Herbert Schaffer of France; and George H. vanAsperen of Holland.

The Board of Directors meeting of the American Society of Adlerian Psychology began Tuesday evening and met until Wednesday noon completing its business in record time. Dr. William Pew was reelected as President and Robert G. Wilhite, Secretary; Kurt A. Adler as Treasurer; Walter O'Connell, First Vice President; and Marven Nelsen, Second Vice President. Don Welti was elected to the Board of Directors. Sue Blons will continue as Executive Secretary. The headquarters of the ASAP will be 4419 Cedar, Minneapolis, Minnesota. The ASAP membership meeting was held 7:00 - 9:00 p.m. Wednesday, July 1, 1970.

The main program of the International Congress opened Thursday morning, July 2, 1970, with an opening address by William Pew, President of the American Society of Adlerian Psychology followed by greetings by Alexandra Adler, Honorary Vice President of the International Association of Individual Psychology. Dr. Kurt A. Adler, President of the International Association of Individual Psychology gave the presidential address. This was followed by a sound film of Dr. Alfred Adler speaking. The Alfred Adler Centennial commemoration then continued with speeches by Adlerians from both the United States and abroad through Friday and Saturday. The International Congress culminated with a conference and council meeting on Sunday, July 5, 1970. The group should be commended for the splendid leadership and organizing of facilities for the International Congress and the meeting of the American Society of Adlerian Psychology. Even though many people worked diligently in the preparation, the evidence of the leadership of Danica Deutsch and Ina Block was evident. A memorable occasion was the garden party in Englewood, New Jersey hosted by Dr. Beatrice Lieben and her husband. Three bus loads of Adlerians spent an evening of feasting and visiting.

DELEGATES MEETING OF IALP

The following officers were elected to serve the three years until the next International Congress, the location for which has not yet been set:

Bernard Shulman, M. D. - President
 Maurice Bullard - Treasurer
 Marven O. Nelsen - Secretary General
 Members of the Council - Knut Baumgartel, Austria; Kurt Adler, New York; George vanAsperen, Holland; Paul Rom, England; Emerich Weissmann, England, Wera Mahler, Israel; and Herbert Schaffer, France.

PRESIDENT PLANS TO VISIT LOCALS

A letter from the ASAP President, William Pew states that one of his projects for the year is to visit every local Adlerian group throughout the United States and Canada. He hopes to be able to help to bring the local group together, provide a means of communicating goals and functions, and to share - mutual support and encouragement.

CHILDRENS CONFERENCE TO BE HELD IN D.C.

The Council of National Organizations for Children and Youth and the National Assembly for Social Policy and Development are assuming responsibility for combining the lists of organizational representatives that will be invited to participate in the children's conference to be held in Washington, D. C. December 13 - 18, 1970. Approximately one-third of the total delegation of approximately 4,000 has been delegated as representatives to national voluntary and professional organizations. In addition to inviting approximately 250 organizations which are not affiliated with either of the national and professional organizations, on the recommendation of the council and assembly, there will be 285 youth - ages 14 through 24 invited to attend, 95 parents of children under 13 years of age, and 190 representatives of minority groups.

CALL FOR BOOK REVIEWERS

Since the present editors began publication of The Individual Psychologist, we have depended upon Leo Rattner for book reviews and the burden of providing book reviews has rested predominately on him. It is time we began to share in the work and not leave it only to one person - competent though he is. Therefore, the editors of The Individual Psychologist welcome volunteers who are willing to review books for the IP.

THE SATURDAY FAMILY EDUCATION CENTER OF MINNEAPOLIS

"From the Pulpit, Pew, and Parrish," a publication by the Harrelton Avenue United Methodist Church in Minneapolis, Vol. 11, No. 7, April 8, 1969, describes the Saturday morning meetings conducted by Dr. Pew and other members of the Minnesota group. The meetings are held in the lower level of the church and are attended by teenagers, parents, professionals, judges, lawyers - everyone wanting to improve relationships in their families and in society. The attendance ranges from 100 to 150 people every week. A University of Minnesota graduate student is doing a study and evaluating the progress of the Family Education Center which is supported by a special grant of the Hennipen County Court Services.

LOCAL GROUPS NEWSLETTERS

We are receiving newsletters from The Oregon Society of Individual Psychology; The Toronto Association of Individual Psychology; The Associates for Study and Action, Wilmington, Delaware; and The Individual Psychology Association of Greater Washington, Inc.; as well as the North Side News of Chicago.

IPNL

A publication entitled Organ of the International Association of Individual Psychology departs from its usual format for the centennial year of the birth of Alfred Adler and carries pictures of numerous prominent Adlerians. Paul Rom does an excellent job of editing IPNL, but the March Centennial Issue of 1970, Vol. 19, No. 4 is the most expansive he has done so far. The IPNL is available by subscription and the price is $2.50. We suggest that if you do subscribe that you use international money order rather than check. Paul Rom's address is The Bungalow, 6 Vale Rise, London N. W. 11, England.

THE COMMEMORATION MEDAL

The Alfred Adler Commemoration Medal is now available. The birth of Alfred Adler is celebrated by the very tangible keepsake - The Alfred Adler Commemoration Medal to mark the Centennial Year. Only 150 of the medals were minted. Twenty-five will be retained as awards. The medallion, struck in high relief has an added beauty in its convex shape. Limited numbers of the medal are available by writing to The Alfred Adler Mental Hygiene Clinic, 333 Central Park West, New York, New York 10025. The medal, struck in 99.9% pure silver in a velvet-lined case, sells for $25. If purchasers use checks, they should be made payable to the Roth Fund.

CONFERENCE AT WEST VIRGINIA UNIVERSITY JULY 20-23

The most significant contribution that Dr. Rudolf Dreikurs has made to counselor education was made this week at West Virginia University. Dr. Manford Sonstegard, Dr. G. E. Stormer, and seven graduate students, some of them doctoral candidates, participated in a four-day workshop of advanced training in group approaches. Four groups of children volunteered to help with the instruction; elementary school children, junior high school children, and senior high school children and one group composed of adults. The format of the workshop was unique in that every one of the participants had an opportunity to take the group for a short session of perhaps 15 minutes. After each had had an opportunity to practice group approaches with the groups of children, a seminar was held in which the participants and Dr. Dreikurs discussed the shortcomings and strengths of each of the counselors. The approach proved to be exceedingly effective. As high as 200 West Virginia University graduate students assembled in the West Virginia University Medical Center Auditorium to observe the workshop in progress. Video tapes were also produced and will be made available to those interested in this particular approach to counselor education and group approaches. Several people, including Patricia Ann Hiscox, Barbara Pomfret, and Nick and Cornelia Tedoru, came from New York City to participate. Velner Skov, a teacher in a technical school in Helsingor, Denmark, attended the sessions, but did not participate in the training.

WILMINGTON, DELAWARE GROUP FORGES AHEAD

Mrs. Eleanor Bowling, Public Relations and Publications Coordinator of the Family Education Center writes that Gloria Lane, Administrative Coordinator of the Family Education Center has taken the major leadership in the organization of three parent study groups which began June 18, 1970, and will run for ten weeks. They will meet at the Grace Episcopal Church. A parent group called "Children the Challenge" using tapes prepared by Dr. Dreikurs and others meets Monday Evenings from 8:00 to 10:00 p.m. under the leadership of Gloria Lane and Kirby Thomas. Another group entitled "Problem Solving" meets with Gwennie Heim. A third group is primarily for teachers and is entitled "Psychology in the Classroom." This group uses the NDEA film strip from Dr. Dreikurs' teacher training session video taped in Vermont last summer. Emily Thorne is the leader of this group. The leadership of the groups changes to accommodate vacation periods. Family Education Center in Wilmington, Delaware will again be open with the academic school year. The first meeting will be held September 12, 1970, and the Center will be open every other week during the academic year.

Jack Harris is now Chairman of the Family Education Center Board and Kirby Thomas is Vice Chairman.

The Human Relations Center of New York held an open meeting concerning the 100th anniversary of the birth of Alfred Adler in May. The speaker was Dr. Helene Papanek.

HUNGER IN THE CLASSROOM

Readers Digest, March, 1970, carries an article by Lester Velie. It reveals what has happened during the 24 years since congress passed a law to safeguard the health of the nation's children in school lunches. Do the kids like the school lunches? If you asked them, you probably would not find out because you would be talking with 3/5 of the eight million needy children who are eligible for free lunches, but never get them. Sciences for the National Institute of Child Health and Human Development spends over one million dollars per year to determine the effects of hunger on children's ability to learn and develop and to find out whether hunger stunts brain growth in children as it does in laboratory brain rats. The author of the article states that Sciences could find ample grist for their research mills in the classrooms of America. School nurses report that children suffer from headaches and stomach cramps for lack of food and fall asleep in the middle of the morning because of hunger. In some areas, the children spend the lunch hours rummaging around in garbage pails in the neighborhood for food. This, even though the government spends several million dollars per year for the school lunch program. The reason for this state of affairs? The author says few laws in our nation's history has been evaded and defied as has the school lunch Act of 1946.

One shocking fact in the federal school lunch program is that more than 54% of the money appropriated for school lunches by the heads of government was diverted by the bureaucrats to aspects of the school lunch programs other than lunches for needy children. Seven states diverted all of the free lunch money for other purposes than lunches for needy children. Local authorities determine who shall and who shall not have free lunches. It can be stated without fear of contradiction that lack of nutrition and proper food during the formative growing period of a child's life results in irreparable damage to the brain. Thus, the way things are going now, thousands of people may be condemned to a life of comparative inadequacy due to the lack of proper nourishment during the formative period of their life. What are you going to do about it? It is for certain, the experts state, that in many states nothing will be done without pressure from the local community or state levels in the areas where children are not properly fed. How is the free lunch money that should be used to feed hungry children being used? Often to subsidize middle class children who are able to pay for lunches or diverted by local officials to other aspects of the school lunch program. If you do not have the March, 1970, issue of the Readers Digest, you may obtain 10 of them for .50 or 50 for $2.00 by writing to the Readers Digest Association, Inc., Pleasantville, New York 10570. (Article submitted by Joseph Meiers)

WORKSHOP IN VERMONT

Many members of the American Society of Adlerian Psychology left the International Congress meeting and the ASAP annual meeting in New York to attend the workshop on Problems in Training Elementary Counselors held at the University of Vermont, Burlington, Vermont. More than 45 interested people attended the workshop which began Monday morning at 9:00 a.m. and extended through 4:00 p.m. on Tuesday, July 7, 1970. The summary of the proceedings of the workshop is available. Also available are two one hour video tapes; one of them deals with Theory and Practice in training Adlerian counselors and the other Qualification Requirements for counselors. In essence, although theory is necessary for the fundamental basic underpinning of Adlerian training, more essential is the practical - learn by doing aspect of training counselors. Theory has very little meaning without the actual doing. The controversy is not so much a matter of theory and practice as it is a matter of concreteness and abstractness. The trend seems to be definitely toward concrete approaches in counselor training. According to the conference, the trend is toward training of personnel for counseling regardless of whether they have a degree. A degree does not assure competence. Too much emphasis has been placed on the holding of degrees as qualifications rather than effectiveness in counseling. Dr. Rowena Ansbacher chaired the meeting and should be commended, in the first place for planning the conference and in the second, for the excellent manner in which it was organized.

THE PERTINENCE OF ADLER'S VIEWS

The Roche Report, Volume VII, Number 10, May 15, 1970, issued by the Roche Laboratories Division of Hoffman-LaRoche Inc., Nutley, New Jersey, 07110, points out that 100 years after his birth, the writings of Alfred Adler appear to be more widely used than ever before. It is interesting and instructive that Adlerian concepts are better known among laymen than were Freuds, particularly in the United States. Whereas Freud singled out instinct and particularly sexual drives for their activating roles in human motivation, Adler stressed self-determination of the individual - that man is not totally subject to the influence of heredity and social environment, but that man freely and subjectively chooses the ways in which he responds. Alfred Adler felt that psychology should participate in efforts to improve society. The relevance of Alfred Adler is reflected in his writings of 1933 where he writes urging mental health workers to "work against nationalism when it is so poorly understood that it hurts mankind as a whole; against wars of conquest, against unemployment, which plunges people into hopelessness; and against all other obstacles which interfere with the spread of social interest in the family, the school, and in society at large." Dr. Kurt Adler, reflecting upon his father's works and writings, stated in the Roche Report, "One form of maladaptation resulting from insufficient social interest is the striving for personal power and for domination of others, whether personal or on the political scene." On the basis of this theory, Adler predicted many of today's political upheavals because men attempt to dominate women, for example. Women have rebelled in the form of a masculine protest to use Alfred Adler's terms. Advocates of black power decry discrimination that has prevented blacks from full participation in American economy and social life. Student leaders protest because they are not granted a measure of responsibility and the power equal to their status as young adults; patients feel they have insufficient control of the delivery of health services; young men feel that their government is playing Russian roulette with their lives with the National draft lottery.

Suppressed groups frequently try to reach their goals by violence because destructive means a release from the situation is felt intolerable and thus appears to be a preliminary condition of improvement. Dr. Kurt Adler goes on to say, "Rather than provoking more severe oppression as a result of extreme outbursts, I feel that Alfred Adler would have advocated other methods of overcoming oppression in particular through the process of education." He hoped that in this way, the blacks and other unprivileged groups might gain the status necessary for real equality.

CENTENNIAL PUBLICATION

The Journal of Individual Psychology, Volume 26, No. 1, May, 1970, is the Alfred Adler Centennial Issue and carries a portrait of Alfred Adler on the frontispiece. There is an editorial on "The Timeliness of Alfred Adler" by Dr. H. L. Ansbacher. "Fundamentals of Individual Psychology" by Alfred Adler is also a feature, which is published for the first time in English. At a public lecture commemorating the 100th anniversary of the birth of Alfred Adler in February, Ashley Montague spoke on, "Social Interest and Aggression as Potentialities." The paper is included in this issue of the Journal. Manes Sperber published a book in Vienna on Adler's 100th birthday. The introduction was translated by the editors of the Journal of Individual Psychology and is also published in this issue. Many psychologists and psychiatrists have given their opinion of Adler's place in psychology and the relevance of his ideas for the 1970's. The tributes printed are by: Ledford J. Bischof, James E. Chapman, Albert Ellis, Viktor E. Frankl, Glen A. Holland, Abraham H. Maslow, Rollo May, Joost A. M. Meerloo, Gardner Murphy, Ira Progoff, William S. Sahakian, Wilbert R. Sykes, and Lewis R. Wolberg.

Dr. Raymond Corsini of Honolulu, Hawaii taught a summer session at the Rhode Island College which developed a great deal of interest among the people in Rhode Island. Ray was instrumental in starting a Family Education Center. Father John Daley is a moving spirit in the organization of the Center. The Center is open weekly at the Horace Mann Auditorium - Mondays at 7:00 p.m. The counselors are: Virginia Hadley, Nathan T. Chernov, Phyllis Martin, Michael J. Moakley, and Dorothy Zimmering.

OSIP NEWS

The annual meeting of the Oregon Society of Individual Psychology was held May 16, 1970, in Portland. Dr. Rudolf Dreikurs was special guest and evening speaker. The following officers were elected for the year 1970-71:

President - Nancy Percy
 Vice President - Dr. Steven Swenson
 Secretary - Bonnie Johnson
 Treasurer - Gail Griffin
 Historian - Floy Pepper.

Janet Mann is Membership Chairman and Maurice Bullard is Research and Publications Chairman. Other members of the Executive Board include Marcelene Ling, Jerry Spires, Dorothy Cruickshank, Minnie Rotstein, Pat McReal, Eva Bullard, and Wilma Perry.

- Nancy Percy, Reporter

The National Council on Family Relations will meet at the Pick-Congress Hotel, Chicago, Illinois, October 7 - 10, 1970. Dr. Barbara James, West Virginia University will present a paper - "The Development of Violence in the Family." Dr. Genevieve Painter of the Family Education Association of Champaign County, Illinois, will address the group on "Teen-Parent Group Counseling." The theme of the National Council on Family Relations meeting is "Violence in the Family."

Dr. Walter O'Connell gave the commencement address at O'Connell High School, Galveston, Texas, on May 24, 1970. He also spoke on radio station KXYZ-FM, Houston on "Social Problems of the 70's."

Dr. James Croake has returned to the Florida State University after one year of work in clinical psychology at the Seattle Methodist Hospital at the University of Washington. He reports that while he was in Seattle, he was able to formulate a family counseling program at the Shoreline College. He gave several lectures at the hospital and taught teleanalytic techniques to staff members and medical residents from the University of Washington. He returned to the Florida State University and will be offering courses in child development and group counseling beginning this summer quarter.

Dr. Vernon Enlow will present a workshop at the Bethany Guidance Center, Bethany, Oklahoma. The dates are July 20 - 24, August 3 - 7, and August 10 - 14, 1970. Topics as follows will be discussed: "Psychological Goals of Behavior," "Techniques of Discipline Family and Classroom Constellations," "Introduction to Group Process and Group Dynamics," "Problem Solving Approach to Classroom Behavior," "Individual Concerns and Problems of the Classroom."

PROGRESS REPORT FROM UTAH

Vicki Soltz Statton writes of the progress being made in developing parent study groups and child guidance centers in Utah. The report is too long to print verbatim in the Newsletter; therefore, we are summarizing the report and asking Vicki to write an article on the work being done in Utah for publication in the Individual Psychologist in a future issue.

Dr. G. Allred and Dr. Eugene Mead have a flourishing Adlerian Center at the Brigham Young University in Utah. Both of these men are trained by Dr. Oscar Christensen and Ray Lowe. Besides using Children the Challenge by Dr. Dreikurs and Vicki Soltz as the basic source, they are also using Mission for Mother: Guiding the Child by G. H. Allred. Mission for Mother: Guiding the Child is a well-written book denoting the principles taught by Dreikurs and set forth in Children the Challenge, but developed within the framework of the Mormon faith. The Provo School District has become interested in the problem solving between the adult and the child which Dr. Allred presents. Vicki reports that during the fall term of 1968, more than 110 parents attended the 30-week program of doctoral students serving under Dr. Mead doing advanced practicums at the school sessions. The Open Family Forum is a name which Dr. Allred has coined for the Family Education Center. It meets weekly at the Brigham Young University with families from schools and communities receiving counseling. It has become necessary to divide the Open Family Forum into several sections. The sessions are video taped and played back for class discussion in a student training setting by Dr. Allred. An innovation is a closed T.V. circuit which allows the parents to watch the interview with the children. Many parents are thereby gaining a totally new impression of the interpersonal relationship established with their children.

The fall of 1970 will witness a record enrollment of 400 in the classes which Dr. Allred and Dr. Mead are teaching. Vicki Soltz Statton has been asked to be a guest lecturer twice each semester. Vicki points to the fact that the Superintendent of the Ogden Schools hopes to have groups in every school in the city. A number of study groups now in session are getting training which will enable them to become the initial group leaders.

Dr. Bill Statton, now professor of Material Science at the University of Utah, taught a class last spring entitled, "The Art of Raising Children." This course offered by the University, was organized in Salt Lake City for the students who wish to take courses that require no fees, provide no salary for the professor, and offer no grades and no credit. One of the most interesting items in Vicki's report is that a juvenile court in Salt Lake City is interested in the Adlerian concept of group discussion even though HEW funds have been withdrawn. Utah will soon have leaders for the parent study groups and more parents through PTA programs.

Vicki reports that there is good reason to believe that within a year or so they will have an Individual Psychology Association somewhere in Utah.

Orchids go to Vicki and Bill for their enthusiasm and creativity.

ALFRED ADLER INSTITUTE OF NEW YORK

The Bulletin of Information of the Alfred Adler Institute, 333 Central Park West, New York, New York 10029, for the 1970-71 year describing the courses that are offered by the Alfred Adler Institute has just been issued. There are courses in psychotherapy and counseling programs for first year, second year, and third year students. More than 20 courses are listed for students in psychotherapy and counseling. Five courses are offered for people interested in community mental health. There are also courses for teacher educators. More than 10 courses are offered for those interested in group psychotherapy. Courses are too numerous to list individually. Those interested in study at the Alfred Adler Institute in New York should write to the above address to obtain the Bulletin of Information for 1970-71.

ALFRED ADLER INSTITUTE OF MINNESOTA

The Alfred Adler Institute of Minnesota, an institution of higher learning, is incorporated as a non-profit corporation in the state of Minnesota for the purpose of teaching and demonstrating Adlerian Principles which are based on the theory of Individual Psychology. The program may include instruction in psychotherapy, marriage counseling, psychodrama, family education, family therapy, group counseling, particularly as these utilize the theory of Individual Psychology. This may be achieved by courses, seminars, workshops, institutes, symposia, retreats, speakers bureau or family education centers.

The Institute offers a wide range of courses useful to teachers, counselors, nurses, social workers, physicians, ministers, psychologists, institutional workers, psychiatrists, law enforcement personnel, business management personnel, parents and interested lay people.

A formal course of study leading to certification in family counseling is available. Included are 6 quarters of class work and 6 quarters of practicum with field placement in at least three of the six Family Education Centers

The American Society of Adlerian Psychology

The Society is a professional, non-profit organization operated exclusively for educational and scientific purposes. It seeks to promote the knowledge, training, and teaching of Individual Psychology, defined as the psychological theory and practice created by Alfred Adler; to strengthen the activities, efficiency, and development of the professional workers and groups in Individual Psychology; to establish and maintain standards for professional activities of its members; to encourage research and stimulate further scientific development of Individual Psychology; to establish training centers and institutes of Individual Psychology; to extend the availability of psychotherapeutic services; to publish journals, books, and pamphlets on Individual Psychology; to maintain contact with other groups, associations, and schools of thought in the field of psychology, education, etc.; to encourage and assist state and regional groups to organize and affiliate with the Society. Anyone interested in becoming a member of the American Society of Adlerian Psychology should correspond with Mrs. Sue Blons, Executive Secretary, American Society of Adlerian Psychology, 4419 Cedar Avenue South, Minneapolis, Minnesota 55407. There are five classes of membership: active, associate, auxiliary, life, and corresponding.

Active Membership

The candidate for active membership must have (a) a professional degree from a recognized college, (b) professional status in the field of education, medicine, psychology, social work or related fields, and (c) a minimum of two years of training in theory and application of Individual Psychology or its equivalent. Active members are entitled to the rights and privileges of the Society without restriction.

Associate Membership

Anyone interested in Adlerian Psychology may become a candidate for associate membership provided (a) the candidate holds a bachelor's degree from a recognized college, and (b) has professional status in psychology or related fields. Associate members may be advanced to active membership upon filling the requirements. Associate members may not hold office or vote, but may serve on committees and are entitled to all other rights and privileges of the Society.

Auxiliary Membership

A candidate for auxiliary membership must have an interest in Individual Psychology. Auxiliary members may not hold office, vote, or serve on committees. They are entitled to all other rights and privileges of the Society.

Corresponding Membership

Individuals residing outside the United States or Canada may become corresponding members of the Society on application or invitation, subject to approval of the Board of Directors.

Life Membership

Life membership shall be awarded to individuals in all classes of membership who are 70 years or older and have been members 10 years or more. This membership is outside obligation for payment of dues.

After filing an application for membership, which forms may be procured from the Executive Secretary of American Society of Adlerian Psychology, the application is acted upon by the Board of Directors at either the May or November meeting each year. The dues are $20 for active membership and $12 for associate membership payable after the application has been approved by the Board of Directors and a fee statement is received from the Treasurer of the American Society of Adlerian Psychology. A statement of the dues is mailed in January of each year for membership renewal.

Members may participate in the annual meeting held by the Society consisting of a program of papers, discussions, and demonstrations. The members may participate in the transaction of the business of the Society and the social gatherings. The members may also participate in the Congress held every three years by the International Association of Individual Psychology of which the Society is a member. The International Congress will be held this year in New York City at the Barbizon Plaza Hotel, July 2-5.

The members receive three publications: (1) The Journal of Individual Psychology is published semi-annually by the Society. It contains papers on Individual Psychology or with implications for it, book reviews, abstracts of material presented at Adlerian meetings or Congresses, and relevant news of a general nature. (2) The Individual Psychologist is also published semi-annually. The Individual Psychologist publishes articles written from an Adlerian or Teleoanalytic formation which (a) interprets a changing society and implications for teachers and counselors in their everyday work, (b) furnish an understanding of human behavior, particularly of children, (c) interpret psychological principles to teachers and counselors and help them understand how to apply them in everyday classroom and counseling situations, and (d) furnish an understanding of group dynamics as it applies to interpersonal relations - especially with children. (3) The ASAP Calendar-Newsletter is published monthly. It publishes the calendar of events for each month. In addition, it keeps the American Society of Adlerian Psychology membership informed of courses, workshops, and parent study groups. It also contains short news items of the activities of the members. The subscription price for The Journal of Individual Psychology is $4.00 per year; single copies are $2.50. The Individual Psychologist may be obtained for $1.50 per year; single copies are $1.00. The ASAP Calendar-Newsletter may be received upon the payment of $1.50 per year. Subscriptions for The Journal of Individual Psychology should be sent to Dr. Heinz L. Ansbacher, Editor - The Journal of Individual Psychology, University of Vermont, Burlington, Vermont. Subscriptions to The Individual Psychologist and the ASAP Calendar-Newsletter should be sent to Dr. Manford Sonstegard, Editor - The Individual Psychologist, 504 FT, West Virginia University, Morgantown, West Virginia.

IN MEMORIAM: L. LAPINSOHN, M. D.

The American Society of Adlerian Psychology deeply mourns the loss of one of its eldest members, Leonard I. Lapinsohn, M. D. Dr. Lapinsohn joined our ranks very soon after the foundation of the ASAP, when he was a psychiatrist in Philadelphia, Pennsylvania. At that time, he frequently would come to the meetings of the New York Medical Circle of Individual Psychologists. After several years, he transferred his domicile to Coral Gables, Florida. There he became a health officer in federal service. There, also, he was relatively isolated from personal contact with fellow Adlerians; his state of health did not permit much traveling. Thus, he was less known to the newer members of our Society. His interest in the goals of Adlerians, however, remained unflagging. Only last winter, Dr. Lapinsohn addressed a message to our President and the Executive Board on occasion of their meeting in Minneapolis. In it he urged that a book be planned - "The Individual Psychology of Adler for Psychiatrists." In his message he argued, from his experiences with fellow psychiatrists (especially, the younger ones) that such book was a timely task. He also offered to collaborate on that work. His suggestion was, naturally accepted in principle. Alas, he was not allowed to live to see the fulfillment of this thought. Dr. Lapinsohn had been elected to be chairman of the Adler memorial session within the program of the national meeting of the American Psychiatric Association, in San Francisco on May 13th. That same day, a telegram informed those assembled there that an untimely death tore him from our ranks. Leonard Lapinsohn shall remain unforgotten.
