MARCH 1978

PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE

Dear Friends:

I would like to share some ideas that come to mind as I work in schools in various parts of the U.S. and Canada. Evidence abounds that the major problem in our schools is not overt rebellion. Violence and disruption get the headlines, and truly are troublesome, but the major problem in the schools at this time is the silent majority.

Students and teachers are consistent in their estimates that the typical student is productively involved in learning for not more than half of the average class period. Often the estimates of productive involvement are much lower. If these estimates are anywhere near correct, the waste involved may well constitute our greatest misuse of natural resources.

Students usually agree that apathetic behavior is a passive and subtle use of power and that the private logic of the apathetic student is substantially as follows:

You (Mr. or Ms. Teacher/Administrator) are going to tell us what to do, when to do it, and how to do it. It's clear that we can't change anything. We can't fight city hall, so I'll tell you what you can do, Mr./Ms. Teacher. You can have it! It's your class room. It's your school—on the other hand, I want to get out of this place some day, so I'll do enough academic work to get by (that's for me). You can bet I won't do any more than enough to get by (that's for you).

These young people seldom see any course of action open to them to begin to stimulate change. Apparently we've taught them too well that such decisions are out of their hands.

Best wishes,

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

New York, NY - 1/19/78: I see in the NEWS-LETTER I just received that it is mentioned that my sister and I contributed to the International Encyclopedia of Psychiatry, Psychology, Psychoanalysis & Neurology. May I add here that Ansbacher, Mosak, Pew, Shulman, Powers, Bowman—and I believe others too have contributed articles to the Encyclopedia. My second article was on "Therapy-Adlerian" not on Psychology as stated. I enjoy the Newsletter. Cordially,

Kurt Adler

Arvada, Colorado - 2/78: "An open letter from 'Arch'" to about 50 of my fellow Adlerians: I want to thank each of you—you were so encouraging when I called recently to get your ideas on how to obtain funding to start a Family Education Center here in Jefferson County, Colorado. Not only your generous sharing of ideas and materials, but also your "words of encouragement" have given me the impetus to continue pursuing this ponderous path of grants—ship.

I also want to bring you up to date on progress toward the goal of a family education center here. After many wrong turns and dead-ends, which experiences have given me a whole new meaning for the word "patience," I finally have knocked on the right door. Jefferson County Public Schools has decided to support me in applying for Title IV-C funds to pilot-test my dream of a Family Education Center within the schools! Hopefully three years from September 1978 we'll have an exemplary program, to set a precedent which will help others get government funding for the same purpose!

Again, my deepest thanks for all of your help. Rest assured that I will keep you posted, via the Newsletter, of further developments, like when funding is granted!!! Sincerely, Diane E. "Arch" Archer.

Members should receive convention registration packets between March 1 and March 15. Additional packets may be obtained by writing to: NASAP '78, 510 Leighton Avenue, Silver Spring, MD 20901.

NASAP '78: TRAVEL TIPS

The airlines have instituted new Excursion Fare plans that should definitely benefit convention travelers planning to attend NASAP '78. The fares are approximately twenty percent below coach travel and can apply to any trip that starts in one calendar week and finishes in another calendar week. The way to get these fares is to plan early, reserve early and pay early. Reservations and payments must usually be made at least seven days in advance. The advance time is determined by seat availability on any particular flight. A certain number of excursion seats is reserved on each flight. When these are full, only coach fares are sold.

Group travel is now defined by some airlines as four or more people. Group rates are roughly comparable to excursion rates but may be more advantageous depending on travel dates. For more information on these travel arrangements, members may want to consult a local travel agency. Travelers are not charged for the agency's services

FORUMS GENERATING INTEREST

There has been an active response to the notice of availability of convention forum summaries as prepared by Shirley Gould on "Women and Men, Partners in Cooperation." We are encouraged to see members taking an interest in forum topics.

Richard Berrett's Child Abuse Program and Dorothy Peven's talk on "Historical Perspectives of the Sexual Revolution: Reflections on the Feminist Movement from the Viewpoint of an Adlerian" have also been topics of interest to Adlerians. Although we have no written reports on the Child Abuse Program and Dorothy Peven's talk, we have received requests for them.

THE HAZARDS OF BEING MALE: SURVIVING THE MYTH OF MASCULINE PRIVILEGE

The News Release and abstract for the AAI of Minnesota Workshop may interest other Adlerians. The Hazards of Being Male: Surviving the Myth of the Masculine Privilege," to be conducted on April 7, 8, by Herbert Goldberg, Ph.D., author of the book with the same title, at the West Bank Auditorium, University of Minnesota. The following is a summary of the book abstract by the NASAP Newsletter Staff:

The male in our culture finds himself in countless "damned-if-you-do, damned-if-you-don't" binds. He is constantly being torn by gross inconsistencies between what he had been taught was "masculine" behavior as a boy and what is expected of him as an adult; between inner needs and social pressures . . . for survival's sake he must function like a machine, emotionally detached and repressed. Clinical evidence suggests that this emotional "shallowness" is simply a self-protective device to disguise the intensity of his need. He resists closeness and dependency on the female because once his defenses are penetrated he becomes profoundly attached to the point of deep and almost total dependency. When he loses that primary relationship he frequently finds he can't let go and this precipitates considerable self-destructive behavior.

In adult male-male relationships in our culture, the phenomenon of being without even a single close male friend is common—so widespread it is taken for granted. The lack of such a relationship makes a man particularly vulnerable. It overintensifies his dependency on his mate, which can ultimately suffocate and destroy the relationship.

The "liberationists" have bought the myth that the male is culturally favored—a notion that continues despite the fact that every critical statistic in the area of longevity, disease, suicide, crime, accidents, childhood emotional disorders, alcoholism and drug addiction, etc., reveals a disproportionately higher male rate.

The feminist and humanist growth movements have helped create a social climate conducive to altering such rigid and harmful patterns . . . but men will have to arrive at their own realizations of what is crucial to their survival and well-being. The freeing of the male will come . . . when he reclaims his total self, coming increasingly in contact with his own unique and individual style rather than by rigid role casting, imaging and expectations that result in repetitive, stereotyped responses.

For registration and information on the workshop, please call the Alfred Adler Institute of Minnesota at (612) 926-6511, or write to: AAI of MN, Suite 128, Wood-Excelsior Blvd., Minneapolis, MN 55416.

COMMITTEE REPORTS

More From the Membership Committee: We know you have renewed your membership and many of you have brought a new member into the Society; however, we have received hundreds of phone calls, letters, postcards and telegrams indicating that some of you are in a quandary—you just don't seem to know how to go about getting that new member for NASAP. We can't answer each communication separately so we prepared the following "aids to recruiting." Hope we didn't miss anyone. Maybe you'd better read it all just to be sure.

1. Start immediately compiling a list of COLLEAGUES, FRIENDS, and LOVED ONES who should be members of NASAP and devise a system to contact each and every one as soon as possible.
2. If you don't have membership forms, write to the NASAP office for a supply and never go anywhere without them.
Address: Executive Secretary
North American Society of Adlerian Psychology
159 N. Dearborn St.
Chicago, IL 60601
3. Make it a habit to jot down names and addresses of those you feel would be interested in NASAP Membership but don't feel you know well enough to approach. Mail list to NASAP office. We will invite them for you.

HAGAR THE HORRIBLE

4. If you find yourself reluctant to approach others on behalf of NASAP, evaluate your self-image. Do you generally consider yourself "an opportunity" in the lives of others? Most "Flounders" fear they are imposing and will be rejected. By thinking of oneself as an "opportunity," the fear of rejection magically disappears. You offer the "opportunity"—he/she makes the choice.
5. See the following for the further indepth suggestions for maintaining a high level of recruiting activity in the future.

If you are a TEACHER (K-12):

There is a teacher in your school who needs your skills, techniques, and knowledge of behavior to become a more effective teacher. Encourage him or her to join and become active in NASAP. The students will bless you.

If you are a PSYCHOLOGIST or a PSYCHIATRIST:

And believe one of your peers sees human behavior in a manner reasonably compatible with your own beliefs, write him or her a letter or make a personal contact suggesting NASAP membership. If you think it would help, the Society will write a follow-up letter.

If you are a COUNSELOR:

Whether it be school, marriage, family, vocational, rehabilitation, alcoholic, or other, one of your peer counselor belongs in NASAP. Sign him or her up. This person will thank you—later.

If you are a CONSULTANT:

You must travel a lot (at least 25 miles from home) and have great influence with the people and organizations with whom you consult. Encourage them to join NASAP and learn all the things you know. Eventually you'll have friends everywhere who don't need a consultant.

If you are a STUDENT:

There is so much to learn and you and I both know where the learning is greatest—within NASAP. Get one or more of your fellow students to come join the fun and the learning and the understanding and the becoming.

If you are a STUDY GROUP LEADER:

Look around and you'll find one or more persons who are delighted with what you have taught but want to know more and want to become part of what you are. Sign 'em up!

If you are CHAIRMAN OF AN AFFILIATED ORGANIZATION:

That means you have frequent contact with your Board, Administrators, and the rank and file members of the group. Each meeting is an opportunity to influence someone to join NASAP. Make it an agenda item every month.

If you are a PROFESSOR:

You have a great opportunity to use your powers of influence. I can see it now—30 students rising as one to join the Society. Great job!

If you are CHAIRMAN OF ONE OF THE INSTITUTES:

You will want to be sure every member of your staff is an active NASAP member as well as encourage each of your students to join. Maybe you could get a charter flight to the next convention.

If you are in PRIVATE PRACTICE:

You are sometimes lonely. Throw a party! The combination of exciting company and talking about the joys of NASAP membership is a good mood elevator! You might even encourage appropriate guests to join local affiliated organizations as well as become members of NASAP.

If you are ACTIVE IN REGIONAL DEVELOPMENT:

Good luck. Everyone you work with is a NASAP member. Right? Increased membership in NASAP is one of the main objectives of your Region. Right? Right!!!

If you are a SOCIAL WORKER:

Do you notice that sometimes your job is hard and at times is unrewarding? Just think what it must be like to be a social worker and not be a member of NASAP! Won't you help one of your peers?

If you are a NASAP MEMBER:

You have been carrying this Society by yourself long enough. Spread the wealth. Let others help through their membership. It feels good to provide opportunity for others.

If you are a PARENT:

You have peers in every walk of life who need the same encouragement that you have received. Share with them your enthusiasm for the past, present, and future benefits of NASAP membership. Be sure to invite them to local and Regional activities and let them experience belonging.

If you are an OTHER:

How does it feel? I've often wondered what you are like and what you do. Let's get together some time and talk about the people we signed to NASAP membership.

We have attached a 1978 membership application to help you get started. Go get 'em!

EACH ONE REACH ONE MORE!!

REGIONAL ORGANIZATIONS

REGION I: The following letter has been received from the Western Institute for Research and Training in Humanics, Inc. (WIRTH), Berkeley, California: "Other California Adlerians may be interested to know that the California Legislature has quietly passed a bill sponsored by Berman and Miller (AB 246) concerning Psychoanalytic licensing. According to this bill only the four orthodox Psychoanalytic Institutes in California have a right to train and educate Psychoanalysts. Their graduates only can be licensed to practice Psychoanalysis in California. All training has to be done by medical Psychoanalysts.

There are as of now three Adlerian Training Institutes affiliated with the National Accreditation Association of Psychoanalysis (New York, Chicago and WIRTH). NAAP has applied for recognition at the U.S. Commissioner of Education at the Department of Health, Education and Welfare and is the only national accreditation association accrediting Adlerians, Jungians and Freudians whose recognition by HEW is pending and will probably be granted in September of 1978.

The California law, so NAAP claims, is unconstitutional and disenfranchises many practitioners who already practice, train and educate in Psychoanalysis as understood by NAAP. It even deprives them of the right to study Adlerian, Jungian or Freudian Psychoanalysis. WIRTH, in connection with NAAP, is fighting for a needed amendment to this California law and is hoping that other Adlerians in California will join in this effort to fight for a broader accreditation law."

Sincerely yours,
Lucy K. Ackerknecht

ADLERIAN SCHOOL PROJECT WINS ACCLAIM

The U.S. Office of Education has cited the RIPPS program in Portsmouth, New Hampshire as one of the 150 exemplary education programs across the nation. This is exciting news for Adlerians since parent study groups and Adlerian thinking are basic to the Reading Instruction and Pupil Personnel Services. Specially designed to help Portsmouth school children (K-10) experience success in school, the program includes two types of trained educators, Reading Specialists (for instruction) and Pupil Personnel Services Specialists (Guidance Counselors, School Psychologists, Social Worker, Case Aide, Consulting Psychologist, and Psychiatrist). How well the child learns and the methods by which he learns are considered in direct relation to the child's emotional, social, physical health and intellectual potential. Eighty-five percent of the 350 children demonstrated substantial gains from the program. Phyllis Martin Grimes, Coordinator of RIPPS has noted a positive correlation between parent participation in the group and improvement in the child's behavior and school achievement. Ms. Grimes received her advanced professional training at University of Vermont, the Alfred Adler Institute of Chicago, the Gesell Institute, Connecticut and the University of Rhode Island Family and Marriage Counselors Training Workshops. She has taught at the Alfred Adler Institute of Rhode Island. More information on this project is available through Education In Action, U.S. Office of Education, Washington, D.C. 20202

THE INTERNATIONAL YEAR OF THE CHILD

Article taken from IPNL News Letter
September/October 1977

"Are children 'the last oppressed minority'?"
The United Nations has begun preparations for the International Year of the Child. It is scheduled for 1979, the 20th anniversary of the UN's Declaration of the Rights of the Child—a document that ought to be remembered better than it is.

The International Year of the Child will seek not only to re-examine the rights of the world's 1.5 billion children, as the UNICEF board urged last spring, the year will also work toward meeting the needs of poor children in all countries—and celebrate such qualities of childhood as creativity. It is part of the wisdom of the ages to learn from the childlike thought as well as to instruct it."

WHO IS WHO IN AMERICA

From IPNL News Letter
September/October 1977

In the new edition of WHO'S WHO IN AMERICA, the names of three Adlerians appear: Henry Niedzielski, Albert Ellis and Raymond Corsini. Henry Niedzielski, a teacher of foreign languages, has appeared at several of our international conferences. Albert Ellis is the well-known exponent of his own theory and practice of Rational-Emotive therapy. He and others agree that it is a close relative to Individual Psychology. By coincidence, Raymond Corsini has induced both Dr. Niedzielski and Dr. Ellis to join the A.S.A.P.

ENGLAND

Colchester--Hal McAbee will spend March 21-April 1 in England making detailed arrangements for ICASSI '78. He will meet with members of the Adlerian Society of Great Britain and do some inservice training with teachers while there.

Colchester—From Manford Sonstegard, February: The 1978 ICASSI Summer School, at the University of Essex, may turn out to be one of the most interesting and professionally profitable. In the first place, language should be no barrier for most North Americans. Next, the academic offerings and expertise of the professional staff is without precedence. Of course, this would be true no matter where it would be held. However, from a recreational and historic standpoint, the location has no peer.

Colchester, England, the home of the University of Essex, forty odd miles north and East of London and 45 to 60 minutes by train, which runs frequently, is the most Romanized part of Britain for it was their capitol. This site "sacked by Queen Boadicea at the time when St. Paul was sending his Epistles to the new churches, possessing a complete second-century well and the biggest Norman keep in Europe in foundations made by men who were contemporary with Christ, is an enthralling place," states the Shell Guide to England.

"Queen Boadicea was eventually defeated and the ruined city revived to become a walled city and one of the most important Roman Centers in Britain. After the Romans left, the town was the victim of invasions in turn by the Anglo-Saxons, the Danes and finally the Normans.

Early in its history, Colchester was the Center of the cloth making industry initiated by Flemish refugees. Today it is famous principally for its oysters, engineering, the growing of roses, and the University of Essex, the newest of the post-war Universities.

A collection of Roman and other antiquities may be viewed at the Colchester and Essex Museum. Colchester, according to reports, has the best small zoo in the country at Stanway."

SWITZERLAND

Zurich—The next IAIP meeting will be held in Zurich in 1979. The host organization will be the Swiss Adlerian Society. The theme of the Congress will be "IP Counseling and Therapy." The organizers are presently accepting material for the program. Write to: Dr. V. Louis, XLV Kongress der Internationalen, Vereinigung fur Individual Psychologie, Selnaustrasse 15, CH-8002, Zurich, Switzerland.
