PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE

Dear Friends:

We received good news from Kay Keifert, NASAP '81 Bursar, from the Alfred Adler Institute of Cleveland. NASAP's share of the receipts from the Annual Convention exceeded budget expectations by about $2,000.00. This will certainly help ease the cash flow difficulties brought about by inflation increasing expenses. Once again a deeply felt thank you to the Cleveland Group which did such a superb job in hosting NASAP this year.

Neva Hefner has received five well written proposals for Clonick Estate funding. The suggestions include such projects as:

- 1) A documentary film on the life of Rudolf Dreikurs proposed by Nancy Cannon, Kevin O'Connor and Gerald Cross.
- 2) A proposal for Active Parent Training, a series of six 35 minute videotapes. Adlerian Parenting designed for schools, churches and family centers by Michael Popkin.
- 3) Sponsoring a book on Adlerian Family Education by Edna Nash, Robert Armstrong, Weltha Logan, William McKelvie and Manford Sonstegard.
- 4) Designing, developing and implementing a network of Family Education Centers throughout Canada and the United States by John Symynkiewicz.
- 5) Producing Educational films by Don Sorenson of Educational Media Corporation.

These proposals after careful study by the Executive Committee will then be presented to Sydney Roth with the Executive Committee's recommendations. He will then select those projects he deems to have the greatest merit and propose them to the Clonick Estate trustees. The offer has already been a success because of the ideas and creativity that it has stimulated. Our thanks to Sydney.

Harold Mosak has forwarded some information about the establishment of a Peace Academy in the United States. The academy would teach conflict resolution in an academic curriculum, an idea that Dr. Dreikurs advocated for many years. They are hoping to create a graduate level institution offering a two year Master's Program as well as shorter courses and seminars to meet the needs of leaders in business, labor, government relations, members of the military and law enforcement agencies. It is hoped that as many as fifteen branch programs would be formed on existing college and university campuses in every region of the country. The goal is to have a world wide reserve of experts at peace making who will work for creative alternatives to violence and who will be available to spot and cool off trouble spots before they reach the explosive point.

Several conflict situations have been cited in which experts trained in these techniques successfully helped peaceful resolution. They listed Hanafi Muslim takeover in Washington, Wounded Knee, three dozen prison riot situations (no such experts were involved in Attica). If interested, write the National Peace Academy Campaign, 1625 I Street, N.W., Suite 726, Washington, D.C. 20006. They are seeking support and contributions which will enroll the donator as a founder member.

This sounds like a very worthwhile project that will undoubtedly need a ground swell of support to gain Congressional backing in these times of financial cutbacks.

NASAP's own fund raising effort has been a success. Over $10,000 has already been received on pledges of our $13,000. Very encouraging that several contributors have sent over $200 in excess of their pledges. Many thanks to the membership and the efforts of Sylvia Robbins and her committee.

Last is an announcement that NASAP and Alfred Adler Institute of Chicago will co-sponsor in 1982 a conference in Mexico designed for physicians and clinical psychologists. The site is Puerto Vallarta from January 23 to 30. Leo Gold, Harold Mosak, Ron Pancner, Bernard Shulman, Kristin Pancner and Dorothy Peven will constitute the faculty. Please aid in publicizing the event - brochures will follow.

Warmest regards,

Ronald J. Pancner, M.D.
President

The following letter appeared in the May, 1981 issue of AMERICAN JOURNAL OF PSYCHIATRY.

The Trend Toward Alfred Adler's Positions

Sir: The current trend in personality theory and psychotherapy toward positions originally held by Alfred Adler has been pointed out on a number of occasions (1,2). "Emotion as Personal Creation: A Psychoanalytic and Psychological Perspective" by Gordon W. Warne, M.D. (April 1980 issue) is another example of this trend. To demonstrate this thesis, I have coupled quotations from Dr. Warne's article with equivalent statements by Adler (3).

(W: "Emotions are not...alien forces that impinge and inflict themselves on an unwilling subject."

A: Emotions are not mysterious phenomena which cannot be explained."

W: "Although intention often refers 'to unconsciously intended and chosen acts,' the patient is not 'the victim of an emotional attack...of inchoate forces...blind forces...' He is active initiator of the events in question."

A: "One cannot quite believe one who in his anger damages precious objects and then attempts to excuse himself by saying he did not know what he was doing. The intention to hurt his environment is too obvious. He will in this emotion always reach for something valuable, not for insignificant objects...There must be a plan in such a procedure."

Dr. Warne gained his new understanding from a general systems approach which maintains that "any human behavior can be adequately comprehended only when it is viewed from multiple perspectives." Adler emphasized every behavior in relation to its context and in reference to its effects on the environment. In this way he also was a systems thinker. Adler (4) wrote of three relational systems of man: human being-earth, individual-society, and male-female. Examination of Adler as a forerunner should facilitate the understanding and further development of the current trend.

COMMITTEE REPORTS

Ad Hoc Committee on the 80's

The Ad Hoc Committee on the 80's is continuing its work of seeking questions and answers for NASAP as we proceed in the decade of the 80's. The Committee would like to share some of the ideas that came out of the brainstorming sessions in Cleveland in May. These will be printed from time to time, as space permits.

1) Clear definition of role of D.A. in regional planning and directions. More emphases on D.A. representatives being tied to their constituents. Forums to discuss different ideas and theories and how they relate to Adlerian psychology; i.e., Ackerman.

2) I am concerned because too many Senior Adlerians are not in attendance. Are they voting with their feet that the organization no longer meets their needs? Some way must be found to reinterest them. Special interest sections may work.

3) Give continuing education credits for various professional groups. It will encourage attendance at conventions and regional meetings.

4) How to effectively meet the needs of running an organization and maintain our integrity as an organization representing certain ideals. Need to address question of how we get money and where we accept money from; how the process of NASAP conventions and D.A. meetings does or does not effect Adlerian principles.

Psychoanalyst's Essay on Nijinsky's Madness
Published After Suppression

So read the headline of an article on the front page of the Wednesday, August 5 New York Times.

A previously unpublished work by Alfred Adler will be published in the July issue of the American Medical Association's Archives of General Psychiatry. The work was written in 1936 as a preface to The Diary of Vaslav Nijinsky, the renowned Russian ballet dancer.

Nijinsky's career was cut short by a severe mental disorder, probably schizophrenia. Although some of the most famous psychoanalysts of the period (including Freud and Jung) examined and treated Nijinsky, Adler seemed to be the most hopeful about his recovery. Although Adler did not treat Nijinsky, Nijinsky's wife, Romola was so heartened by Adler's opinion that she asked Adler to write a preface to the Diary.

The preface consists of Adler's theory of severe mental illness and some of the factors in Nijinsky's life that led to his illness. Adler stressed the then controversial notion of inferiority complex but omitted Romola's role in Nijinsky's disorder.

The accompanying discussion by Dr. Heinz L. Ansbacher revealed that Romola was displeased by Adler's focus on Nijinsky's problems and particularly by the notion that Nijinsky had an inferiority complex. Romola rejected Adler's preface and wrote a glowing one herself.

Adler died in 1937, but his family kept the preface until 1973 before turning it over to Dr. Ansbacher. Mrs. Nijinsky, however, was still alive then, and Dr. Ansbacher was asked by her agent not to make it public. Her death in Paris in 1978 freed him to seek publication.

This work sheds light on the tragic decline of a world-famous artist and contains a concise presentation of Adler's theory of schizophrenia.

The New York Times article contains numerous quotes from the preface and from Dr. Ansbacher. Copies may be obtained by writing:

Teen-Age Pregnancy

Adlerians have known for eighty years that behavior problems at home and at school are often understandable in terms of overcompensation for feelings of inferiority and inadequacy. Now, the Adlerian approach to understanding human behavior is being applied to social problems beyond the home and classroom. The social problems that beset millions of young adults across the country and across the world can be seen as unsuccessful attempts to relieve the painful, underlying conviction that one is "not good enough."

Mitch Messer, an alumnus of the Alfred Adler Institute of Chicago, has used the psychology of Alfred Adler and Rudolf Dreikurs to show how the ever-worsening problem of teen-age pregnancy can be understood and prevented by helping young people to replace their feelings of self-contempt with feelings of self-respect. Much as Edward Jenner did two hundred years ago, Messer wonders why some young women are vulnerable to the malady while others are seemingly "immune". He examines and rejects 18 popular "explanations" for this epidemic of unwanted pregnancies in favor of an Adlerian perspective on adolescent negative behavior, a perspective that offers a more positive outlook than the "It can't be helped" attitude that the other explanations inevitably lead to.

In addition to his newly revised booklet, "But He Told Me He Loved Me" (pub. by Illegitimacy Prevention, Inc., 24 pages, $2), Messer is publishing a series of Adlerian posters that illustrate Adlerian and Dreikursian concepts of self-respect, mischief, cooperation, problem solving, and so on. The booklet and a catalogue of these posters are available from the AAI of Chicago, 159 N. Dearborn St., Chicago, IL 60601.

COLORADO

Boulder--Dreikurs exposed! The Rudolf Dreikurs Institute of Colorado has moved. Their new three-level facilities (located in South Creek Shopping Village) have private counseling offices, clerical office space, and in response to current thinking in family systems theory (and its impact on individual psychotherapy). Encourage heretics or this organization will be left in the dust.

b. Deal with the reality that those Adlerians who stay away from NASAP are casting a vote. What does it mean? What is NASAP doing about it? When are we going to stop talking about our alleged concern that NASAP is so white and middle class and do something about it?

5) I want to re-enforce a statement made previously that big is not better for NASAP; a smaller, committed NASAP (only slightly larger than it presently is) is manageable. A larger NASAP would lose the sense of identity that now exists. To make NASAP known to the "world" can be accomplished through concerted direction, not numbers. Therefore, a P.R. person is essential.

Sonstegard Lectures Abroad

Dr. Manford Sonstegard, Professor Emeritus, at the West Virginia College of Graduate Studies has been invited by the Psychologist of the Distrikts Hoy Skolen in Norway to give four lectures and demonstrations related to theory and practice of counseling teenagers the first week in September. After completing his assignment in Norway, Dr. Sonstegard will teach Adlerian Psychology at the National College for the Speech Sciences and with Lena Austin, area speech therapist, will train speech therapists in the Camden-Julington area of London on how to apply Adlerian Psychological prina large studio allowing for classes and workshops. The location provides new public exposure for Adlerian Psychology--people passing on the street can't help but see the sign: "DREIKURS INSTITUTE".

The Institute's staff consists of Co-Directors, Kathy and Bill Kvols-Riedler; Marketing Director, Terri Lash; and new Associate, Rob Guttenberg, who recently moved to Colorado from Maryland. Rob is a graduate of the Adler-Dreikurs Institute at Bowie State College.

If you are in the Colorado area, you are invited to visit the Institute. Call them at 303/499-4500.

(Aside--Remember that the 1983 Annual Convention will be hosted by this group. Hold Memorial Day weekend for the 31st Convention at the Keystone Lodge in the mountains near Denver.)

NEW MEXICO

Sante Fe--Jody M. Adams will be conducting another workshop beginning in mid-September using CHILDREN: THE CHALLENGE. Those attending will have been referred to her by child protective social workers, the judicial district's program for adult first offenders, and some church organizations serving economically and socially deprived people. She is putting together material that she has used with some success in recent workshops attended by women who are not fluent readers and who feel insecure in expressing themselves. She banks heavily on games, role playing, and written exercises that lead to very personal discussion. From this input, she draws major principles familiar to all of us in NASAP. By making workshops fun, she tries to show that family life can be and should be fun without sacrificing individual responsibility.

ILLINOIS

Chicago--AAI of Chicago: The Woods Charitable Fund has pledged to the Institute a $10,000 gift to match an equal amount in alumni gifts of $50 or more between July 1981 and June 30, 1982. Qualifying donors are all former AAI students as well as graduates. If you are a graduate or former student, please await further details. The Institute will contact you directly.

The Task Force for the Doctoral Program continues its deliberations and recommendations. When these have been reviewed and voted upon by the Curriculum Committee and faculty, details will be available.

Plans are underway for the Institute's Graduation Exercises on Sunday, October 11.

There will be a videotape showing of Rudolf Dreikurs with commentary and discussion led by Sadie Dreikurs on Saturday, October 17, 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. This event is sponsored by the AAI Student Association and a voluntary donation of $5 is requested.

For several years, Marie Sadilek generously assisted the Institute in a variety of fundraising and public relations projects. Her sincere concern and tireless efforts for the development of the Institute were inspiring," reports Gene McClory. He further stated, "In June we were saddened by her death. All of us here express our sympathy to her family and friends."

WEST VIRGINIA

St. Albans--The Law Enforcement Agency Act thought enough of the St. Albans Juvenile Diversion Program to refund it for a third year, which is extremely unusual, according to Judy Bradford. They handle all juvenile status offenders. The largest offense appears to be shoplifting. Judy uses the Adlerian Model counseling the offender and his/her family. In addition, they have numerous study groups for parents of teenagers and special topic sessions.

Judy Bradford is director, Lee Ann Kenney is an assistant and Manford Sonstegard volunteers his services two full days a week. The first year all the referrals were from the St. Albans Municipal Court. Now, they have more referrals from teachers, parents, police, clergy, etc. and less from the Court, which is indicative of good community P.R.

ADLERIANS ARE MULTIPLYING--Boys were born to:

Marie Hartwell-Walker, D.A. member and co-chair of the 1980 Convention

Harriet Lane Tower Bennett, former part-time employee of NASAP, Chicago graduate

Thoughts from some members--

Wynn Carr Gleason, Tacoma, WA: "At NASAP this year, the membership was asked to contribute to the general fund. I thought I could start the ball rolling for those who felt $100 at one time would be too big a bite out of the budget but could make a small monthly donation that wouldn't be missed and would accumulate to at least $100 during the year." $10 pledged per month.

Pearl Cassel, Scarborough, Ontario, pledged proceeds from a workshop. She will give a lecture on a Friday evening and a workshop on a Saturday on adolescents, redirecting behavior or motivation. The workshop money over and above transportation will go to NASAP.
