PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE

Dear fellow members:

The Executive Committee had a very productive two-day meeting in Chicago August 21-22. Our major efforts were directed toward the proposed re-organization plan for NASAP written by Guy Manaster. Our ideas are being incorporated into the plan. This revised plan will be submitted to Delegate Assembly members prior to our meeting in Tucson for their advanced study. It is our goal to make final decision on the re-organization plan in Tucson in order to make it operational in 1983. The direction of the re-organization has been reported in earlier newsletters.

The Executive Committee is also moving ahead with arrangements for the publication of a Family Education Manual by Edna M. Nash, Robert Armstrong, Weltha J. Logan, William E. McKelvie, Manford A. Sonstegard. This is the first publication to be published by NASAP utilizing the Seymour E. Clonick Memorial Publication grant.

The Executive Committee is recommending that the central office and the Executive Committee be responsible for organizing convention programs and workshops in the future. Our goal is to provide a quality program that is representative of all sections to enhance members' training and professional growth. The clinical area has been repeatedly cited as weak in the past. As we approach the task of improving the clinician programs, I would like to quote from a recent letter addressing the issue by Harry A. Olson, Ph.D.

"If we want excellence in clinical programs, we can't sit back and scoff from the sidelines and withdraw our support. Rather, I would urge every disappointed clinician to roll up his or her sleeves and pitch in; to channel dissatisfaction, and perhaps anger, into useful, positive energy for the whole Society's good. We have to set the example ourselves; others won't take the lead if there is no one to model."

To provide clinical programs and workshops, we will need the acceptance and support of our efforts by the clinicians. Ron Pancner has been working dilligently to increase the number of clinical programs for our 1983 convention and will continue to do so for our 1984 convention.

NASAP is at a crossroads. The Executive Committee and D.A. are committed to providing a sense of direction that is attractive to all members.

With warm regards,

Kathleen A. Walton, B.A.
President

I.E. School

North Vancouver, B.C.
August, 1982

This September, 1982, at Queen Mary Community School in North Vancouver, British Columbia, we began our second year as an Individual Education School. Last year the staff, children, parents and community were trained and transitioned into the I.E. Program making it the first Individual Education School in Canada. Queen Mary Community School is a part of the public school system in the North Vancouver School District.

Last year was a lot of work, as well as a lot of joy. This year we are excited and committed to what we feel is the most comprehensive, viable and positive form of education in the world today.

We would like to acknowledge special thanks to Dr. Raymond Corsini for developing the Individual Education concept and system. We also have a large message of appreciation to Edward Parpart, Superintendent of Public Schools in Joliet, Illinois and to Mike Dubrovich, Principal, Forest Park Elementary School, Joliet, Illinois, for the encouragement, sharing, and support they extended to us during our birth process.

--Naomi A. Serrano, Area Counselor
North Vancouver School District

"Convention Reaction"

Zürich, Switzerland
September, 1982

I should like to reply to Nicholas Ionedes' "Convention Reaction" as follows:

Not having been to the 30th Conference in Santa Rosa, it made me very happy to hear from your "Reaction" that you offered programs "heavily influenced by Eastern Philosophy, psychoanalytic theories or other popular current theories".

My view is that:

- (a) uncommitted people are most influenced by the atmosphere of acceptance and openness prevailing at Adlerian conventions rather than by orthodox stance.
- (b) I always end up being a better Adlerian by being may-be enriched and by having to take a stance toward other ideologies.

I believe that departures from Adlerian foundations allow for fruitful confrontations and may enhance our impact rather than lessen it. In fact with continuing openness I might even consider visiting one of your future conventions.

Let me join Adler in saying 'Lesen Sie Freud' (read Freud or Minuchin or...as the case may be).

OF GENERAL INTEREST

Parenting In China

Harriett E. Kaplan, Child Psychologist at the University Hospital in Saskatoon, Saskatchewan (Canada), recently visited the People's Republic of China. While there, she gave a seminar to about 75 pediatricians and pediatric nurses at the Pediatric Hospital in Guilin, China. Following her talk, Harriett questioned the Pediatricians regarding current parenting issues in China. The following article written by Harriett discusses several of these issues.

On August 16, 1982, I spoke to a group of 75 pediatricians and pediatric nurses at the Maternity and Child Hospital in Guilin, People's Republic of China on my work in parenting at University Hospital, Saskatoon. The hospital Director, Dr. Min Tseng, a kindly, middle-aged woman, was educated at Yale in China. My talk was translated into Mandarin Chinese, and I was told by the Deputy Director of Public Health for the District, Dr. Mai Wen Kui, a physician educated at Columbia University, that the translation was clear and accurate. This was the first time a psychologist had spoken at the hospital he said. I covered Adlerian theory, our Family In Focus technique, common parenting concerns in the United States and Canada, and suggestions we give to parents. I also mentioned study groups, parent education programs and STEP, as well as suggestions and studies on raising the I.Q. in children. Then, I was allowed to ask questions of the Director, Dr. Tseng.

I was interested in learning more about child rearing methods in China; Dr. Tseng told me that people marry late, the woman usually in her late twenties and the man at about 30 years of age. They are encouraged to have only one child due to China's overpopulation problem. Most people obey this rule, which went into effect a few years ago. Before that, people were allowed two children. There are more problems in enforcing this in the country side; but, in general, extra pregnancies are aborted. Many benefits are taken away from families if a second child is born and social disapproval is strongly expressed.

Regarding child rearing, most people do not move to other localities so the parents are usually close to other family members. Also separation and divorce are not common. Thus, we do not see the one parent or blended family here as a rule. Another difference is that in about 50% of the families, the child is given to the grandmother to raise. This is an old custom, as child rearing is considered an honourable profession for the elderly. Also, it frees the mother to work. Often, women do not nurse their babies very long if the children are being raised by the grandparents. Children usually stay with grandparents until they start school at the age of seven years.

The natural parents might only visit once a week or less (depending on distance and desire) during this time. With regard to the other 50% of the children, the mother is allowed about six weeks off work after birth, and works only part-time for the first year after she gives birth. The child is then placed in day care. If the mother is lucky, it could be at her place of employment. Unfortunately, China is plagued by similar problems to ours--overcrowded daycare facilities, too few and poorly trained attendants, etc.

Dr. Tseng said parenting is not taught as such in schools; but, pregnant mothers do have their questions answered at prenatal visits. There are some booklets and articles on child rearing. The doctor relies on her own experiences to help new mothers who come with their children for postnatal check-ups once a month for the first three months, then every two months until the age of one year. After that, visits are made twice a year until the child reaches the age of seven years. Another help for parents having child rearing problems is visits by women who successfully raised their own children. These women offer practical advice. Billboards in the park and other public places give child rearing ideas for enrichment; such as, how to teach the child various skills.

The one-child family opens a new era in China. Professionals are concerned as to what will happen with a nation of "only" children and they hope to expand more in psychology to study the effects. It will be most interesting to see how a generation of "only" children will fare and I hope that further research will be allowed in this area.

Conference on Peacemaking and Conflict Resolution

A National Conference on Peacemaking and Conflict Resolution will be held March 4-6, 1983 at the University of Georgia Center for Continuing Education, Athens, Georgia. This conference will bring together professional and lay people from a variety of backgrounds to explicitly address issues central to the role of mediation in today's world. Neighborhood and community mechanisms for solving disputes, mediation in the criminal justice system, corporate and business strategies for conflict resolution, terrorism, and the church as mediator are some of the topics to be highlighted in roundtables and workshops. Issues of ethics, standards, and increasing involvement in mediation will serve as the focus of plenary and work sessions of the conference.

All who are interested in participating please contact: Ed Weeks, Program Specialist in Arts and Sciences, Georgia Center for Continuing

Education, University of Georgia, Athens, GA 30602
Telephone: (404) 542-7909.

ILLINOIS

Chicago--AAI of Chicago: In August the Institute was the recipient of a $50,000 gift from the Estate of Seymour E. Clonick. The donors have requested that this donation be used to generate matching gifts. Among the purposes of this gift is the further development of the doctoral program. This is the largest single gift received in the Institute's history. The decision to award this generous sum was made by the Estate's Co-Executors: Sydney M. Roth, Herbert J. Clonick, and Paul H. Vishny.

The Illinois Board of Higher Education conducted a site visit on Sept. 2 - part of the process towards doctoral degree-granting authority.

Ray Lowe of the University of Oregon will conduct the Rudolf Dreikurs Memorial Workshop on Saturday, Dec. 4. The Workshop, sponsored by the Institute, will be held at St. Joseph Hospital Auditorium, and will include videotapes of Dreikurs.

Approximately 300 students attended 19 courses offered at the Institute during this Summer.

The Institute's graduation exercises have been scheduled for Sunday, Oct. 17, 4 p.m. at the Dixon Chapel, 2nd floor of the Chicago Temple Building, Washington and Clark. A reception at the Institute will follow.

Chicago--The Chicago Area Adlerian Association gave its first presentation for the season on September 12, entitled Incest and Child Sexual Abuse Treatment. The lecturer, Ellen McGury is a Probation Officer with Juvenile Court of Cook County and a graduate of the Adler Institute of Chicago.

The next presentation is November 7th, 3:00 p.m. Sunday, at the Adler Institute of Chicago. Fee for non-members is $4.00. The lecture is entitled: An Adlerian's View of China, which will include a slide presentation, focusing on the life tasks. The life of the average $40.00 a month factory worker will be explored, along with a look at the treatment of patients in a mental hospital. Kay Kummerow, M.S., M.A. is a graduate of the Alfred Adler Institute of Chicago. Besides teaching at the high school and junior high levels, she is a counselor in private practice with a special interest in parent study groups.

Dates for future lectures will be Jan. 16, Mar. 6, and May 1.

For further information about membership and future presentations, or details of being on the mailing list, contact Co-chairs, Jay Colker, 935-9490, or Helen Cooley, 422-1848.

INDIANA

Mishawaka--A four day intensive training workshop for attorneys, marriage and family therapists, counselors and clergy interested in acquiring and developing the skills of divorce mediation will be held Nov. 4-7, 1982, at the Holiday Inn, 515 Dixie Way North, South Bend, IN 46637. The workshop is sponsored by the Family and Children's Center of Mishawaka.

Mediation offers an alternative to the adversarial process for couples seeking a divorce. It enables the restructuring of the family system on principles of cooperation and communication, without undue delay, expense, animosity or litigation. The intensive four day training will emphasize practical knowledge and experience with the use of didactic presentations and role-play.

TEXAS

Houston--Buzz O'Connell reports that he is introducing Adlerian Psychology to the drug and alcohol groups in the maximum security section (Ellis Unit) of the Huntsville Prison. In true Adlerian spirit, he receives no remuneration for this service. Buzz states, "Although the Macho U.S.A. orientation is to 'get tough' with prisoners and Commies, economic factors may bring us to our senses and free us to accept 'gemeinschaftsgefühl' as a way of life."

Region V - Northeast

NEW YORK

Cortland, Ithaca, Elmira--Linda Albert will be presenting a workshop entitled Coping with Handicapped Kids in Cortland on November 30; Ithaca, December 1 and 2; Elmira on December 3. These workshops are being sponsored by the area Special Education Training and Resource Centers, a division of the Board of Cooperative Educational Services in each of the cities.

New York--The New York Committee of NASAP Region V will hold an Adlerian get-together on Friday evening, October 15, at 7:30 p.m., at the Alfred Adler Institute, 37 W. 65th Street. There will be a report on the 15th International Congress of Individual Psychology held in Vienna. In addition, Dr. Leo Rattner will speak on Adler's Relevance in Today's World, subject of his paper at the International Congress. A brief report on other papers will be followed by a social and refreshments.

INTERNATIONAL

Lucy Ackerknecht, Director of the Western Institute for Research and Training in Humanics, sent a brief report on her European travels for WIRTH. She indicated that Adlerian Psychology is earning more and more recognition in Europe, and more physicians seem to be interested. She lectured to 200 physicians in Cologne (and "they even took notes!") and has been asked to speak to the physicians of Duisburg. The hospitals of that city have organized a 10-day seminar for her to teach to the medical profession. In addition, she will speak to the staff of one of the largest state mental institutions of Germany--Duesseldorf-Grafenberg.

Dr. Ackerknecht has received an invitation from the West German Psychotherapy Seminar to give a lecture on doing psychotherapy with the elderly. Victor Frankl will be the other lecturer.

"An Evening in Old Tucson"

You will be transported by bus to this famous movie site for the Best Party in the West. The romance of the Hollywood Western, along with ruggedness of the Old West, create a delightful setting of Southwestern hospitality. You'll witness gunfighting cowboys on Main Street, enjoy a real chuckwagon barbecue, and dance to the country music of "Peso Dollar." Everything but cocktails is included in your registration fee.

Luncheon Speaker: Lynn Lott, M.A., M.F.C.C., Director, Family Education Center, Palatka, CA; Private Practice/Lott, Counseling, and Educational Services; Consultant, State of California Department of Alcohol and Drug Abuse; recently Lynn appeared on the Donahue Show.

Keynote Speaker: Joe Sorrentino, Juvenile Court Judge, Los Angeles, California Superior Court; author; faculty member of University of Southern California. Having been a juvenile ganglord, veteran of reformatories, jails and padded cells, he turned himself around and graduated from Harvard Law School. F. Lee Bailey calls him "The best juvenile court judge in the world."
