E.C. and D.A. to Meet in Chicago

By the time you receive this message the Executive Committee (E.C.) will have met (the last week of August), in part to prepare for the Delegate Assembly (D.A.) meeting to be held in Chicago, November 2-4, 1984. The E.C. will also have put the finishing touches on plans for the NASAP-sponsored Alfred Adler Memorial Workshops on November 2nd in Chicago to be given by Robert L. Powers and Jane Griffith on "Stress and Gender," and by Roy Kern on "Stress and Lifestyle."

The Functions of the E.C. and D.A.

The E.C. will have dealt with the wide variety of matters which go on in an organization such as ours--all of the financial and organizational patting and pushing that gets things done and keeps us afloat. Basically it is the function of the E.C. to assist, facilitate, cajole, supervise, liaison, and oversee; to see that the policies sent by the D.A., and the continuing work of the Society, are carried out, and carried forth. The function of the D.A. is to set policy, give direction to the Society, and provide general oversight.

The Role of the Central Office Staff

Our Staff (Neva Hefner and current Assistant, Sarah Hefner) handles all of the detail, all of the paperwork, and keeps the E.C. and D.A. on track. Anyone who has been involved, and/or read these pages, over the years knows that Neva is terrific. And anyone who knows this kind of work knows that our staff is not sufficient. Since we do not have the money for more staff, the members of the E.C. and D.A., individually and as committees, often must do more than the statements of their functions dictate.

Tasks Facing the D.A.

On the one hand, we can take pride in the great amount of work accomplished each year by the Delegates beyond the call, and definition, of their duty. On the other hand, I believe the press of limited staff and limited funds has created a less than optimal situation. In my opinion much too much time in D.A. meetings is spent on the particulars of tasks. The Assembly meets for less than four days each year. The Time is precious. Many of the issues and ideas the Assembly confronts are important, grand and complex. To the extent that the Assembly discussion gets bogged down with the particulars and complexities, other issues, new ideas, policy and value questions are not raised or debated. To the extent that the Assembly dwells in the particulars of the moment we lose our potential for influencing the future.

Moving Closer Toward our Goals

Tremendous headway has been made in the organization and functioning of the Society. I believe that now is the time to take another step so that the Assembly can provide wisdom and direction, and the E.C. and the Staff can provide the specifics so that more active members can participate and contribute.

Our aims are lofty. Our means are limited. Our vision and energy is boundless. I intend to work with the E.C. and the D.A. to refine our organization in order to make better use of our energy, clarify our vision, and move closer to our goals.

Toronto Helps!!

On our last NEWSLETTER, I raved about the job the Alfred Adler Institute of Ontario, Steven and Susan Moore, did in putting on last May's Convention. Now we hear that financially the Convention was also a huge success. The Society's income from the Toronto meeting will exceed our expectations by 50%! Marvelous, and thanks again.

Now, On to Atlanta...

NASAP'85, again to be held at the end of May, will be in Atlanta, Georgia. It is being hosted by the Atlanta Adlerian Society. We are looking forward to another rewarding and successful Annual Convention.

A Jungian Tribute to Adler

James Hillman, a Jungian scholar and therapist, has written a book entitled, Healing Fiction, (Barrytown, NY 12507: Station Hill Press, 1983; available from Ram & Goat Press, P.O. Box 222069 Dallas, TX 75222, $8.50), which deals in three chapters with the approaches of Freud, Jung and Adler. Hillman credits Adler with having made a "deliteralizing move which neither Freud nor Jung could" (p.104). "Where Freud and Jung give us [objective] meanings, Adler [in his subjectivist psychology] forces us to see through our meanings. As such, Adler is a forerunner of what is called 'post-modern consciousness'" (p.110).

One of the merits of Hillman's chapter is his recognition that Jungian approaches are "remarkably similar to aspects of Adlerian thought" (p.113). Further, Hillman observes that Freudian and Jungian psychologies try to answer the question: "What does the soul want?," whereas Adler emphasizes that it is "not what the soul wants--but that it wants" (p.129). To this we may add that when Adler was once asked, "What is the most important thing in life?," he replied, "What you don't have" (Cooperation Between the Sexes, p. 400).

The sophisticated Adlerian reader will not want to miss this book.

Mother and Daughter: Death and Rebirth

Sioux-Zen Glick and Jordana Glick's The Only Way You Get to Keep It Is to Give It Away!!! (Houston: Synergy Press, 2370 Geosource Plaza, 71 pp., $9.00, paper) is overflowing with personal experiences of death and rebirth for me, yet I did not write one word of it. Mother and daughter herein record their awareness of inner death and rebirth over the years. I met the mother (Sioux-Zen) on a day I was told of the accidental death of a good friend. She attended my death and dying workshop that day in order to mourn the death of her son, Richie, to whom the book is dedicated.

The book is illustrated with photographs by Jim, a Vietnam veteran who sought treatment at my natural high program in Houston's V.A. hospital. Sioux-Zen was a volunteer when Jim was in the hospital ward. It was after Jim's successful rehabilitation that he and Sioux-Zen collaborated on this book. Jim died of a heart attack while the book was in press. A "Balancing Birth" is daughter, Jordana, who participated in my psychodramas and may enter that field.

The commentary is written by Norman Cousins, whose self-disclosures on living a transformed life and his practice of humor brought a million-fold more life into that field than all of my research could possibly do.

To add to the inter-connections, all donations go to the Franzheim/Buckminster Fuller Synergy Trust Award, which continues to encourage me in many ways.

NASAP Resolution on Environmental Protection

I am most grateful to the Delegate Assembly at the Toronto NASAP Conference for accepting unanimously the Resolution on the Environment Protection proposed by Maurice Bullard, Robert Powers, and myself. You have proved by that that you are aware of the urgent importance that individual Adlerians and their local committees actively cooperate with the environmentalists and their community. The need to protect the environment becomes obvious every day. Perhaps some of you may want to cut out the text of the Resolution and place it in your office.

RESOLUTION ON ENVIRONMENT

WE SEE IN THE ENVIRONMENTAL MOVEMENT A LOGICAL AND ULTIMATE EXTENSION OF THE SOCIAL INTEREST, AND WE COMMEND TO EVERY MEMBER OF NASAP A LIVELY AND ACTIVE INTEREST IN THE AFFAIRS OF THE VARIOUS SOCIETIES AND ASSOCIATIONS WHICH HAVE ADDRESSED THEMSELVES TO THE DEFENSE OF THOSE UNIVERSAL CONDITIONS UPON WHICH ALL LIFE NOW, AND IN THE FUTURE, DEPENDS.

Retirement and Floy C. Pepper

An increasing number of letters from our more senior members; namely retiring Adlerians, are reaching NASAP's central office. Each seems to reflect mixed experiences. Here is one example:

Regarding retirement, Floy C. Pepper, NASAP member since 1974 and retired teacher since 1983, says, "it is not for me," and that hers was initially "an ungraceful retirement." Gilbert, Floy's husband and retired since 1975, found his wife constantly underfoot, disrupting his daily routine. In order to resume his once happy household activities, Gilbert decided to assist Floy in finding a job.

After three months, their joint efforts were successful, when in the summer of 1983, Floy assumed a position in Indian Education with the Northwest Regional Educational Laboratory. Her major assignment was the publication of a manual based on Adlerian principles for use by teachers of Indian students.

In the past year, Floy's "retirement" schedule has been an active one, including teaching at Portland State University, with Maintaining Sanity in the Classroom as text; leading workshops and presenting in Alaska, California, Idaho, Montana and South Dakota; keynoting at two educational conferences; co-directing the Rudolf Dreikurs Institute; counseling and leading Parent Study Groups, and the receipt of an award as the Indian Teacher of the Year in the State of Oregon.

Now, what does Floy think of retirement? Well, she doesn't...she'll give it some thought when she's 70 or 75, or maybe 80!

Journal Correction

NASAP members and subscribers to our quarterly journal, Individual Psychology (IP), may have been confused by the mislabeled cover of the June, 1984 (40:2) issue, incorrectly subtitled as a special issue: "Adlerian Psychology and Special Needs Children." IP Editor, Jon Carlson, has passed on information from the journal's publisher, University of Texas Press, in which apologies were made for the error. The publisher will run an Erratum explaining the error in the next journal issue.

Adlerians Interviewed on In-Law Relationships

In the June/July, 1984 issue of Brides magazine, psychology writer Myron Brenton interviews NASAP members Ellen Mendel, psychotherapist affiliated with the Alfred Adler Mental Hygiene Clinic in New York City, and Jon Carlson, psychologist and director of the Lake Geneva Wellness Clinic in Wisconsin, on the subject of the newlyweds' relationship with their in-laws. Both Ms. Mendel and Dr. Carlson stress the importance of the role in-laws play in the early marital life of the newlywed couple. Practical advice is offered by both Adlerians on ways to approach the in-law relationship: discuss expectations; work at becoming a unit; understand your parents' feelings; avoid angry confrontations, and seek compromise solutions.

Agent 007 meets Alfred Adler

A story of somewhat curious content comes our way. Though curious, it is amusing. It involves the story of Alfred Adler and James Bond creator, Ian Fleming. The Chicago Sun-Times reports (5-27-84), in an article reprinted from Discover magazine, the "psychopathic" beginnings of the young Fleming, a man plagued by desires ranging from fast cars and fast women to heavy gambling and alcoholism. Through the therapeutic attentiveness of an Adler student, Fleming eventually was able to redirect his reckless flamboyancy into the tales of Agent 007. The following quote best describes Adler's role in the life of our favorite spy thriller creator:

Would the doctor consent to undertake his [Fleming] treatment?...The doctor, pioneer theorist of sibling rivalry and the inferiority complex, and once the favorite pupil of Freud, was Viennese psychiatrist Alfred Adler. The appeal was issued in 1927 by the mother of Ian Fleming...But there was a problem: young Fleming would not knowingly submit to therapy. Adler's solution was to disguise his student Joshua Bierer, 26, as a tutor of international law [at that time Fleming was attempting to pass the exams necessary to assume work with the Foreign Office]. Under that cover for three months, Bierer could attempt to modify the youth's rebellious behavior.

As a postscript, it should be noted that Bierer became a distinguished London psychiatrist, who at 80 has just completed his autobiography. He remembered the assignment as "the most difficult job I ever had," and his subject "the most brilliant psychopath I have ever met."

It looks like we Adlerians will be viewing the next James Bond flick through glasses of a slightly different dimension...

Systematic Training
for Effective Parenting

News from STEP; STEP/Teen

STEP and STEP/Teen have been very much in the news of late. The following news bits were submitted to NASAP's Central Office.

STEP & STEP/Teen in the U.S. Air Force--The U.S. Air Force has established required training for social workers and family advocacy workers in both STEP and STEP/Teen. These workshops have been conducted by Don C. Dinkmeyer, Sr. and Don C. Dinkmeyer, Jr. in Boston, Los Angeles, Honolulu, and Wiesbaden, West Germany. Dr. Dinkmeyer, Sr. reports that the programs have been enthusiastically received. The Air Force has already established plans to go ahead with an extensive family education program utilizing STEP and STEP/Teen.

STEP in Japan--New NASAP member, Sakan Yanagidaira, President of the Group Dynamics Institute in Tokyo, Japan, reports that his institute is now using STEP and STEP/Teen (both have been translated into Japanese) in its parent education programs. TIME, the new marriage enrichment program, is being translated into Japanese for future implementation at the institute. Mr. Yanagidaira was first introduced to STEP through Don C. Dinkmeyer's visit to Japan ten years ago. Mr. Yanagidaira has translated The Practical Parent, by Raymond Corsini and Genevieve Painter, into Japanese. Contact: Sakan Yanagidaira, Group Dynamics Institute, Inc., 2-10-25 Mita Meguro-Ku, Tokyo 153, Japan. Tel 03(79)1811.

TIME--Training in Marriage Enrichment is a 10 week marriage enrichment course recently released by American Guidance Service. Don C. Dinkmeyer, Sr. and Jon Carlson authored this program based upon Adlerian concepts. TIME went through extensive field trials prior to its publication. The Leader's Kit can be purchased for $69.50; the Couples Packet, containing 2 copies of the Participant's Handbook and an audiocassette, "Time to Relax and Imagine," costs $19.50 postpaid. A Sampler of excerpts from the program is available for $3.50 postpaid. Contact: AGS, 2031A Publishers' Building, Circle Pines, MN 55014-1796.

Chicago--The Americas Institute of Adlerian Studies (AIAS) announces the appointment of Betty Lou Bettner to their affiliated faculty. Betty Lou, a member of NASAP's Executive Committee, is a graduate of AIAS and a Counselor in Pennsylvania, where she also teaches at Philadelphia area's Neumann College.

Chicago--AAI of Chicago reports that its drive for funds under the $50,000 Challenge Grant from the Seymour E. Clonick Estate has been successful--goal was surpassed in August. The Institute expresses its heartfelt thanks to those who donated and to the committed executives, Mssrs. Herbert J. Clonick, Max Kopstein and Sydney M. Roth.

Summer school statistics reflect the ever-growing popularity of the methods of Individual Psychology--301 students were enrolled in 18 courses, three of which had to be added to the original schedule in order to accommodate the demand.

Bernard H. Shulman will present a special workshop, "Advanced Life Style," Sunday, November 18, from 10:00 a.m. to 4:00 p.m. at the Institute. He will address new ways to score life style Data. (Prerequisite: a basic course in life style diagnosis.)

The Family Education Activities Division (FEA) is scheduled to open a Family Education Center in the north-suburban Chicago area in October. FEA will also mount its Semi-Annual Training Workshop for Study Group Leaders on September 8, and a two-day workshop, "How to Sell an Idea," on October 13 and 14. Pre-registration bonus (for the latter): fee reduction from $90 to $75 if received before September 21. Contact: Bryna Gamson, AAI of Chicago, 159 N. Dearborn, Chicago, IL 60601; 312/346-3458.
